Newry residents have mixed views on growth, but seem mostly opposed to moratorium

Over 100 people turned out on a rainy night, Monday, for a public hearing at the Newry municipal building on the proposed six-month building moratorium. The heavy turnout gives some indication of the strong feelings the moratorium proposal has produced in this town of 250 year-round residents.

When the hearing was over, one Newry native said the moratorium proposal was likely to be defeated when it comes up for a vote at a special town meeting Monday, Sept. 12. It is not that people are in favor of the rapid growth that is taking place in town, this person said, but they do not want to see any handcuffs placed on their own rights to do what they want with their own property.

Should the moratorium be approved by Special Town Meeting, there would follow a six-month period during which the Planning Board would be prohibited from considering—or accepting for consideration—any plans for new subdivisions, multi-family housing, commercial or industrial developments.

Since every moratorium, to be legal, must offer a justification for this cut-off in development, the Newry moratorium proposal states that whereas the Town of Bethel seems likely to close its landfill to Newry's solid waste next July, and whereas the town has no plan for dealing with this eventuality, and whereas the rapid development in the town is creating ever more solid waste, therefore it is time to stop the development until a solid waste solution is found.

Discussion during the hour-and-a-half hearing centered on whether a moratorium was needed in order to deal with the solid waste problem. Planning Board Chairman Jim Sykes said the proposed moratorium had succeeded in focusing townspeople's attention on the solid waste issue. "If nothing else, this moratorium has got the Planning Board thinking—about long-term issues [that is, solid waste]." But, he continued, "I don't think stopping building for a half-year, or a year, is going to help."

the moratorium, said the continued rapid development of multi-family housing in the town could only make the problem worse. "The more development, the greater the volume of trash. The greater the volume of trash, the more difficult the solution," he said.

What the moratorium would accomplish, Mr. Morrison said, would be to provide a gap, during which solutions could be worked out. "We need some time to deal with the problem," he said.

Others disagreed. Jeff Parsons, of the Outward Bound school in Newry, said, "Stopping building has nothing to do with the solid waste problem."

Jim Delamater, president of the Bethel Savings Bank, said a moratorium gives a negative impression. "It gives the connotation that 'We can't handle our problems.'"

"Most of the towns we work with that have passed moratoriums say they wish they hadn't," he continued. "Maybe to announce to the world 'We quit' is not the right way to go."

Steve Martin, a property owner in Newry but a resident of Portland, said, "A result of the Portland moratorium

Teachers and students head back to the books

Yesterday (Tuesday) was the first day of the new school year for SAD #44 students, and Superintendent Dewaine Craig reports that everything went smoothly.

On Monday, the first day back for teachers, it was discovered that the water pump at the Woodstock Elementary School was broken. But a new one was up and running by the time the students arrived the next day.

Otherwise, the superintendent reports, all the system's systems were go.

Preliminary enrollment figures indicate that there are 1,171 students in school this year, the superintendent said, compared to 1,145 who were enrolled when school let out in June.

Enrollment is up considerably—from 78 to 97—at the Andover Elementary School; the Woodstock Elementary School gained 18 students, bringing its enrollment to 174.

The combined enrollment at EBS and CPS is 333 this fall, compared to 339 last spring.

At Telstar, the middle school has 223 enrolled, compared to 226 last spring, while the high school has 344, compared to 347 last spring.

Despite the increase at AES, there is still plenty of classroom space available, the superintendent said, and new portable classrooms at WES and Crescent Park School are helping out with the space crunch there. Each of the district's elementary schools (except AES) now has two portables.

At Ethel Bisbee the portables provide space for the library, Chapter I, the resource room and staff offices. At WES they are used for Chapter I, the composite room, library and music room. At CPS the library and music room are again in one portable, while two 4th Grade classes share the second.

West Paris tax rate up

Tax bills went out to property owners in West Paris last week and they showed an increase of one mill. The current rate is $16.6 per $1,000 of assessed valuation, compared with $15.6 last year.

Town officials said the increase was mainly due to two factors: federal revenue sharing drying up, leaving more of the municipal budget to be funded by taxation; and a higher school assessment.

The SAD #44 assessment to the town increased nearly $25,000—to $206,665.

The total amount to be raised by taxes in the town this year is $353,323, compared to $312,500 last year.

youngsters who are registered for class in SAD #44 this school year. This is up from 1,145 last year. SAD #17 youngsters start school today (Wednesday). (Photo by Jeanne Boudreau)

SAD #44 gets new faculty and staff

Seventeen new faculty and staff members have joined SAD #44 for the 1988-89 school year.

Bruce A. Bell is the new Telstar Middle School principal. [See interview in last week's Citizen.] Mr. Bell was previously a team leader and teacher at the Auburn Middle School. While at that school, Mr. Bell was responsible for the scheduling of counseling for individual and group sessions, conducting various student achievement and assessment tests, the coordination and implementation of the assertive discipline plan, the establishment of teaching assignments, and the completion of all tasks related to instruction and classroom management.

Mr. Bell also has experience with career education and alcohol and drug abuse prevention instruction. Mr. Bell has been a graduate apprentice in guidance and counseling at Cony High School, in Augusta, a building representative to the system-wide planning committee for the city of Auburn, social studies chairperson at Auburn Middle School, and served as assistant principal at Webster Junior High School, also in Auburn.

Mr. Bell received his bachelor's degree from the University of Maine at Farmington, participated in graduate study at McGill University, and received his master's in education from the University of Maine at Orono.

Lynn Boschetti is the new elementary guidance counselor for Crescent Park and Ethel Bisbee schools in Bethel. Ms. Boschetti attended Stephens College in Columbia, Mo., and Boston University. She received her master's degree in counseling psychology from Cambridge College. She has also participated in many additional courses relating to social work, crisis intervention, and the special needs of children.

She recently returned to the Bethel area after living in Massachusetts for several years. Most recently, Ms. Boschetti was an elementary guidance counselor for School Administrative Union 25, Rummford. She was a child welfare specialist in the Lynn, Mass., area for five years. Prior to that she was a child advocate in Lynn, a counseling intern through Cambridge College, and a substitute teacher for the Swampscott (Mass.) public school system. She has also been actively involved in: City of Lynn Preschool Interagency Task Force, Council for Children, Child Abuse and Neglect Committees, facilitator for Parents Anonymous, Friends of the Council on Aging, Early Childhood Advisory Council, and has conducted numerous workshops and consultations for providers and consumers in the North Shore and Greater Boston areas on the subject of child abuse and neglect.

Gail Brooks, of Bethel, is the new special education composite room teacher at the Woodstock Elementary School. Mrs. Brooks received her bachelor's degree from Cardinal Stritch College, in Milwaukee, Wis. She has also SAD #44 residents don't want any days added to school year

An extended school year in Maine has the backing of the governor and the state's top education executive, but community support for the idea is lacking, according to surveys conducted during the past 3½ years by researchers at the University of Maine.

Within SAD #44, ordinary citizens follow the statewide pattern in opposing—by a 2-to-1 margin—a lengthened school year. SAD #44 teachers are even more overwhelmingly against such a change. (The results are based on opinion sampling conducted in the district in April of last year.)

"It's a clear pattern. There is little support [for the lengthened school year] in our data," said Walter G. McIntire, director of UMO's College of Education's Center for Research and Evaluation.

Both Gov. John R. McKernan and Eve M. Bither, commissioner of the Department of Educational and Cultural Services, have advocated extending the school year, with the goal of turning out better-educated students, more able to successfully compete in a global economy. Gov. McKernan proposes adding five days to the 175-day attendance requirement for students.

Expanding the school year is not a new concept, McIntire pointed out. The question has been receiving attention around the country for nearly a decade and is among the national educational issues included on the community attitude surveys conducted by the Center on a contract basis with school systems.

In the 24 school systems (including SAD #44) surveyed to date, 48 percent of the community respondents (ordinary citizens) disagreed with the statement: "A longer school year for teachers would improve the quality of instruction." Twenty-eight percent agreed with the statement, while the remaining respondents either indicated "don't know" or did not give an opinion.

Within SAD #44, 66 percent of the community respondents disagreed with the

CITIZEN DEADLINE WILL BE SEPT. 2 FOR SEPT. 7 ISSUE

Because of the Labor Day holiday on Monday, Sept. 5—on which The Citizen office will be closed—most deadlines will be moved up one working day.

All advertisements and press releases intended for the Sept. 7 issue of the paper should be in the office by noon Friday, Sept. 2. Town correspondents should observe their usual deadline of Saturday. Because of the short work week, the Citizen staff will be unable to accept any ads, columns, announcements or press releases after the above deadlines.

Maine ski areas expand services for '88-'89 season

With frost becoming more frequent in the mornings, winter cannot be too far away. Ski areas in Maine are rushing to complete their improvements for the coming 1988-89 ski season. The Ski Maine Association reports the following expansion projects at the various skiways in the state.

Big Squaw Mountain, Greenville. Big Squaw is happy to report that they will maintain their lift-ticket prices of the previous season ($22) while delivering the quality skiing they are known for. Improvements for this year include enhancement of their trails, upgrading of their snowmaking, more learn-to-ski programs and complete ski vacation packages.

Black Mountain of Maine, Rumford. This year Black Mountain will be widening their trails, relocating the beginners' handle tow lift and continuing to expand their learn-to-ski programs.

Camden Snowbowl, Camden. This year Camden is expanding their snowmaking (adding more air lines) to four of their existing trails, to bring their total snowmaking to cover 40 percent of the entire mountain. In addition they are purchasing a new grooming vehicle and doing extensive trail enhancement to three of their trails. Camden also allows snowboarding, has a selection of rentals and this year will provide lessons for this new and upcoming sport. A racing school will be added to their existing ski school, and there will be an increase in both full-time and part-time instructors.

Time to deregulate health care

In an attempt to slow the increase of health care costs and to make Maine health care facilities more efficient, the state Legislature created the Maine Health Care Finance Commission (MHCFC). The Commission was established in 1982 with all good intentions to do what everybody wanted done.

Has it worked? In most cases, the answer is a resounding No! Inefficient hospitals have been rewarded under the rules of the Commission, while efficient, well-run hospitals face financial chaos with ever-increasing deficits. Of the 42 health care facilities in Maine, over 30 will lose money in 1988. If this trend continues some institutions will be forced to close, reducing the availability of health care to many Maine people.

How did this happen? Using one year as a base for its calculations, the MHCFC set a cap on every hospital's gross revenues based on its costs during that year. If a hospital was efficient, such as Stephens Memorial in Norway, and had low costs, then its revenue cap would not be as high as an inefficient hospital with higher costs. When inflation, the cost of new equipment, increased wages to overcome nursing shortages, etc. increase faster than increases in the revenue cap, hospitals begin to lose money. For example, Stephens Memorial stands to lose over $500,000 in 1988.

If there had never been a MHCFC, the hospital would have made over $500,000 without increasing costs for any patient services? How would Stephens Memorial perform this financial miracle? By serving more patients without having to return Medicare payments to the government because the hospital has exceeded its earnings limit. [Presently, the hospital must return a portion of the Medicare payments it receives because its gross revenues exceed the limits set by the Commission.] Without the MHCFC it might even be possible to lower the cost of services to patients.

Obviously things must change. The answer is not to have, as it is now, the most heavily state-regulated health care industry in the United States.

The bill that created the MHCFC expires this year and a blue ribbon commission, chaired by Senator N. Paul Gauvreau, has been appointed by Governor McKernan to make recommendations for its renewal and/or changes in its operation to the 114th Legislature. After careful study, using the advice and input from Maine hospitals, legislators, business and labor leaders, insurance companies and consumer groups, the Commission has drawn up a draft report. Citizens will be able to comment on the report at two public hearings, to be held on Sept. 6 in Portland and in Bangor on Sept. 7.

Every citizen should be interested in the Commission's report because all citizens would benefit from a less regulated and more-flexible health care system. Please take the time to study the Commission's findings, attend the public hearings and contact your state legislators and urge them to change the system for the better. Help put some sense back into Maine's health care system. Your voice will be heard. You can make a difference.

For additional information contact your local hospital or the Maine Hospital Association, 160 Capitol Street, Augusta, 04330.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

After reading the letters in The Citizen from those that are against "Big Mac" and Super Shaws, etc., I thought it was time to voice my own opinion. I have always been a firm believer of competition, but I guess there are those that are afraid of it. I believe that the natives of Bethel are capable of doing their own thinking and they don't need someone else to put words in their mouths. I would like to see [an] Arby's and [a] McDonald's—and three super-markets stuck in-between.

Maybe those people [who oppose the shopping center] would like to step forward and tell us what we had in Bethel 50 years ago and what is left today.

There is nothing wrong in buying beef from Argentina. They have the best fed bovines in the world.

I wouldn't worry about "Big Mac" changing the appearance of Bethel. [That was done] 30 or 40 years ago.

Yes, there are a lot of people that shop out of town, and one doesn't have to wonder why. I believe there was a survey done last May as to the needs of the Bethel area. More stores and eating places topped the list.

Asked about the related statement: "The school day for students should be lengthened," 62 percent of the community respondents statewide, and 63 percent of SAD #44 respondents, either disagreed or disagreed strongly.

Teachers statewide strongly disagreed with both statements, and in SAD #44, 70 percent of the teachers responding disagreed with lengthening their school year, while only 17 percent agreed.

Seventy-six percent of the SAD #44 teachers disagreed with the idea of lengthening the students' school day, while only 14 percent agreed.

Maine has one of the shortest school years in the U.S., which generally has one of the shortest school years among developed countries.

A note from the publisher

I can sympathize with Dan Quayle. When you're faced with a question of relative comfort as opposed to relative discomfort—possibly even injury or death—you would have to have very strong reasons to choose the latter.

When young men faced the draft during the Vietnam War era, those who had options, or who were aware that they had options, had to make decisions. For most who were drafted, there were no good options. And so they were sent to a far off war.

Many of us, though, did have choices to make.

In my own case, I was just one week from being drafted into the Army when I decided to opt for an alternative.

I had just graduated from college; I had been offered a job teaching high school English at my old high school; the head of the English Department at my university wanted me to go to graduate school there; the Army had given me my physical and found me fit; the Army said my grades on their exam were very good and they offered me officer candidate school if I would enlist instead of entering through the draft.

Decisions, decisions. Some alternatives were easier than others to dispose of. Back in those days, teaching wasn't considered a job that would earn one a deferment—whereas had I graduated in engineering I could have taken a job as an engineer and stayed out of the military.

Graduate school would have earned me a deferment, but I was tired of college after 4½ years of it. Going to Army OCS and becoming an Army officer didn't seem too much different from being drafted. The Army—slogging around in the jungle, being wet, hot (or cold) and dirty, killing people—didn't seem like what I wanted to do—with two or three years of my life.

The option I chose was to join the Navy. I always liked the sea and ships, and serving aboard a ship was a lot more comfortable than serving in the infantry. Of course the trade-off was that I had to serve longer than if I had been drafted. I accepted that.

My friends chose different options. Those who were draft-eligible mostly went to graduate school, medical school or dental school, or took jobs in engineering. Very few of my friends went into the military.

Historically, young men do not rush to join the military during wartime. True, when a nation first enters a war there is a rush to enlist. But as the casualties begin to mount, enlistments drop. Even during America's War of Independence, Washington's troops were often leaving their units, particularly if their crops needed tending to.

In the Civil War, northerners who Heron Mountain, Hermon. Learn to ski programs, quality night skiing, convenient to Bangor.

Lost Valley, Auburn. Expanding with three new trails on Alpine East beginner area, widening other trails and increasing its ski school to provide more than 100 instructors for the new season.

Mount Abram, Locke Mills. The family-oriented ski area is in the middle of a two-year West Side expansion project. Expansions this year will include a new chairlift, three new trails, 20 acres of new snowmaking and 3,500 square feet of addition to their existing base lodge lunch area.

Pleasant Mountain, Bridgton. Pleasant Mountain is widening and improving trails, expanding the ski shop and rental center, improving skier services and increasing snowmaking capacity. It is only 38 miles from Portland and can accommodate group trips from the Portland area.

Saddleback, Rangeley. For the upcoming season Saddleback has built 10 additional trailside mountain homes, increasing its slope-side capacity to nearly 400 guests. The snowmaking has been further upgraded. As part of an ongoing program several trails have been widened and others are being improved for the upcoming season. This year Saddleback will offer more unique ski weeks with its "Private lesson ski week." This unique ski opportunity is ideal for those who prefer learning on a one-to-one basis. A proposed five-year, $37 million development plan is now under negotiation.

Sugarloaf/USA, Carrabassett Valley. Improvements include: two new, high-capacity chairlifts, replacing a T-bar with a double chairlift, 25 new acres of skiing, 40 new acres of snowmaking with an overall snowmaking increase of 25 percent for the whole mountain, two new grooming vehicles and extensive trail enhancement.

Sunday River, Newry. Improvements include: two new quad chairlifts, six new trails, trail enhancement, increasing their snowmaking by 8 percent to cover 88 percent of the mountain; adding 36 condominium units, bringing the total to 652; a new base lodge, named White Cap Lodge, will be added, with an additional ski shop; one new Piston Bully grooming vehicle and one new Wynch Cat will join the fleet; additional expansion to the children's ski school; the building of new nursery and day care facilities; snowboarding clinics and rentals.

Titcomb Mountain, Farmington. New for this season, Titcomb's capital improvements include an addition to the base lodge cafeteria and increased ski school personnel to insure that beginners will get off to a positive start. Trail enhancement is also on the list for this season.

wanted to escape the draft could do so easily by getting someone to enlist in their stead—which they did, with the help of completely legitimate payoffs.

If even fighting to defend one's own land has historically been met with a generally unenthusiastic response, how can we expect a great rush to arms to defend allies in far off lands? We can't, and we shouldn't.

Granted, there are those who will volunteer to defend the oppressed. Certainly the Americans who volunteered to fight fascism in the Spanish Civil War are a good example. Some Americans—myself included—tried to do the same at the time of the Hungarian uprising, in 1956. But these are merely the exceptions that prove the rule. Soldiers of whatever army generally fight not for any principle but because the other side is trying to kill them, and because they don't want to let down their own side.

Warfare was not always so. Back in the days of feudalism, a knight who—with his troops—fought on the winning side could expect to receive a reward of lands and peasants. That was a more palpable incentive than ideology.

In short, I do not fault Quayle for not wanting to be drafted. I would rather vote for someone who looked at all options before coming to a decision than someone who was anxious to grab a weapon and start killing people.

I also do not fault Quayle for using his family's influence to get into the National Guard. He did not create the loophole that allowed him to escape combat—LBJ did that. All he did was take advantage of it.

Too many people seem to equate patriotism with war and with getting ready for war. Patriotism is love of country—the country's look and feel and history and culture and institutions and people. Patriotism is giving some thought and taking some time to making one's country an even better place to live. Patriotism is not love of bashing enemies, as some politicians would have us believe.

This is not to say that there is never a reason for going to war. It is only to note that war—for the people on the ground doing the fighting and dying—is tragic. It is the consequence of political decisions made by rulers but is carried out by ordinary citizens whose only possible decision is whether to risk getting killed or to look for an alternative.

My impression is that a person like Quayle—if he can always keep in mind that he himself opted for life over death—might well, if he ever became president, look for non-military ways of influencing the course of world events.

Earl Lamoreau Jr. is a new science and mathematics teacher at Telstar High School. Mr. Lamoreau received his bachelor's degree in science from the University of Maine at Orono, and for the past three years has been an undergraduate instructor for the UMO Physics Department. Prior to that he was an academic tutor at UMO, and was the environmental science coordinator for the UMO Upward Bound program, planning educational and environmental conservation field trips for economically disadvantaged high school students.

Mr. Lamoreau has been a substitute teacher at school in Old Town, Orono, Veazie and Richmond, was a mathematics and computer science teacher for the UMO Upward Bound program and has been a science consultant for the Graham School, in Veazie, Maine.

Elizabeth LaVallee, of Bethel, is also a new English teacher at Telstar High School. Mrs. LaVallee has spent the last 10 years teaching English and language arts at Oxford Hills High School. Prior to that she taught English at Telstar, from 1974 to 1978. She also taught at Leonard Junior High School, in Old Town, Maine.

She received her bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Maine at Orono. She has been involved in D.E.C.S. support groups for alcohol and drug education, assertive discipline, writing projects, career education, and guidance services. She also has extensive experience in coaching and swimming instruction.

Carol Nielson, of Bethel, is a new elementary creative and talented teacher. For the past 19 years Mrs. Nielson has been teaching in the Rumford school system. Since 1982 she has been the full-time teacher/coordinator of their Gifted and Talented program, grades K-12. ball camps in Maine, served as a substitute teacher and basketball coach at Orono High School, and has been a substitute teacher and coach at schools in central Maine.

Catherine Ferris, of North Vassalboro, will be the new elementary music teacher. Miss Ferris received her bachelor's degree in music education from the University of Maine at Orono. Her area of specialization was choral music. She has served as a substitute teacher in grades K-12 and completed her student teaching in the Waterville school system. She has been an assistant music director for a summer music theater and has coordinated choreography for a Broadway review.

Miss Ferris was also a four-year member of the University Singers, at UMO, had principal roles in college opera productions and prepared junior and senior recitals.

Eileen Greeke is the new Grade 2 teacher at the Woodstock Elementary School. Mrs. Greeke received her bachelor's degree in elementary education from the University of Maine at Farmington, and previously attended Essex Agricultural School in Hawthorn, Mass. She resides in Andover and has previously been a substitute teacher and teacher's aide in SAD #44.

Mrs. Greeke has a solid foundation in writing, has been a freelance journalist with the Lewiston Sun Journal/Sunday, and has had her poetry appear in several college publications. She was the director of the Children's Summer Library and has also been active in many other community and civic organizations.

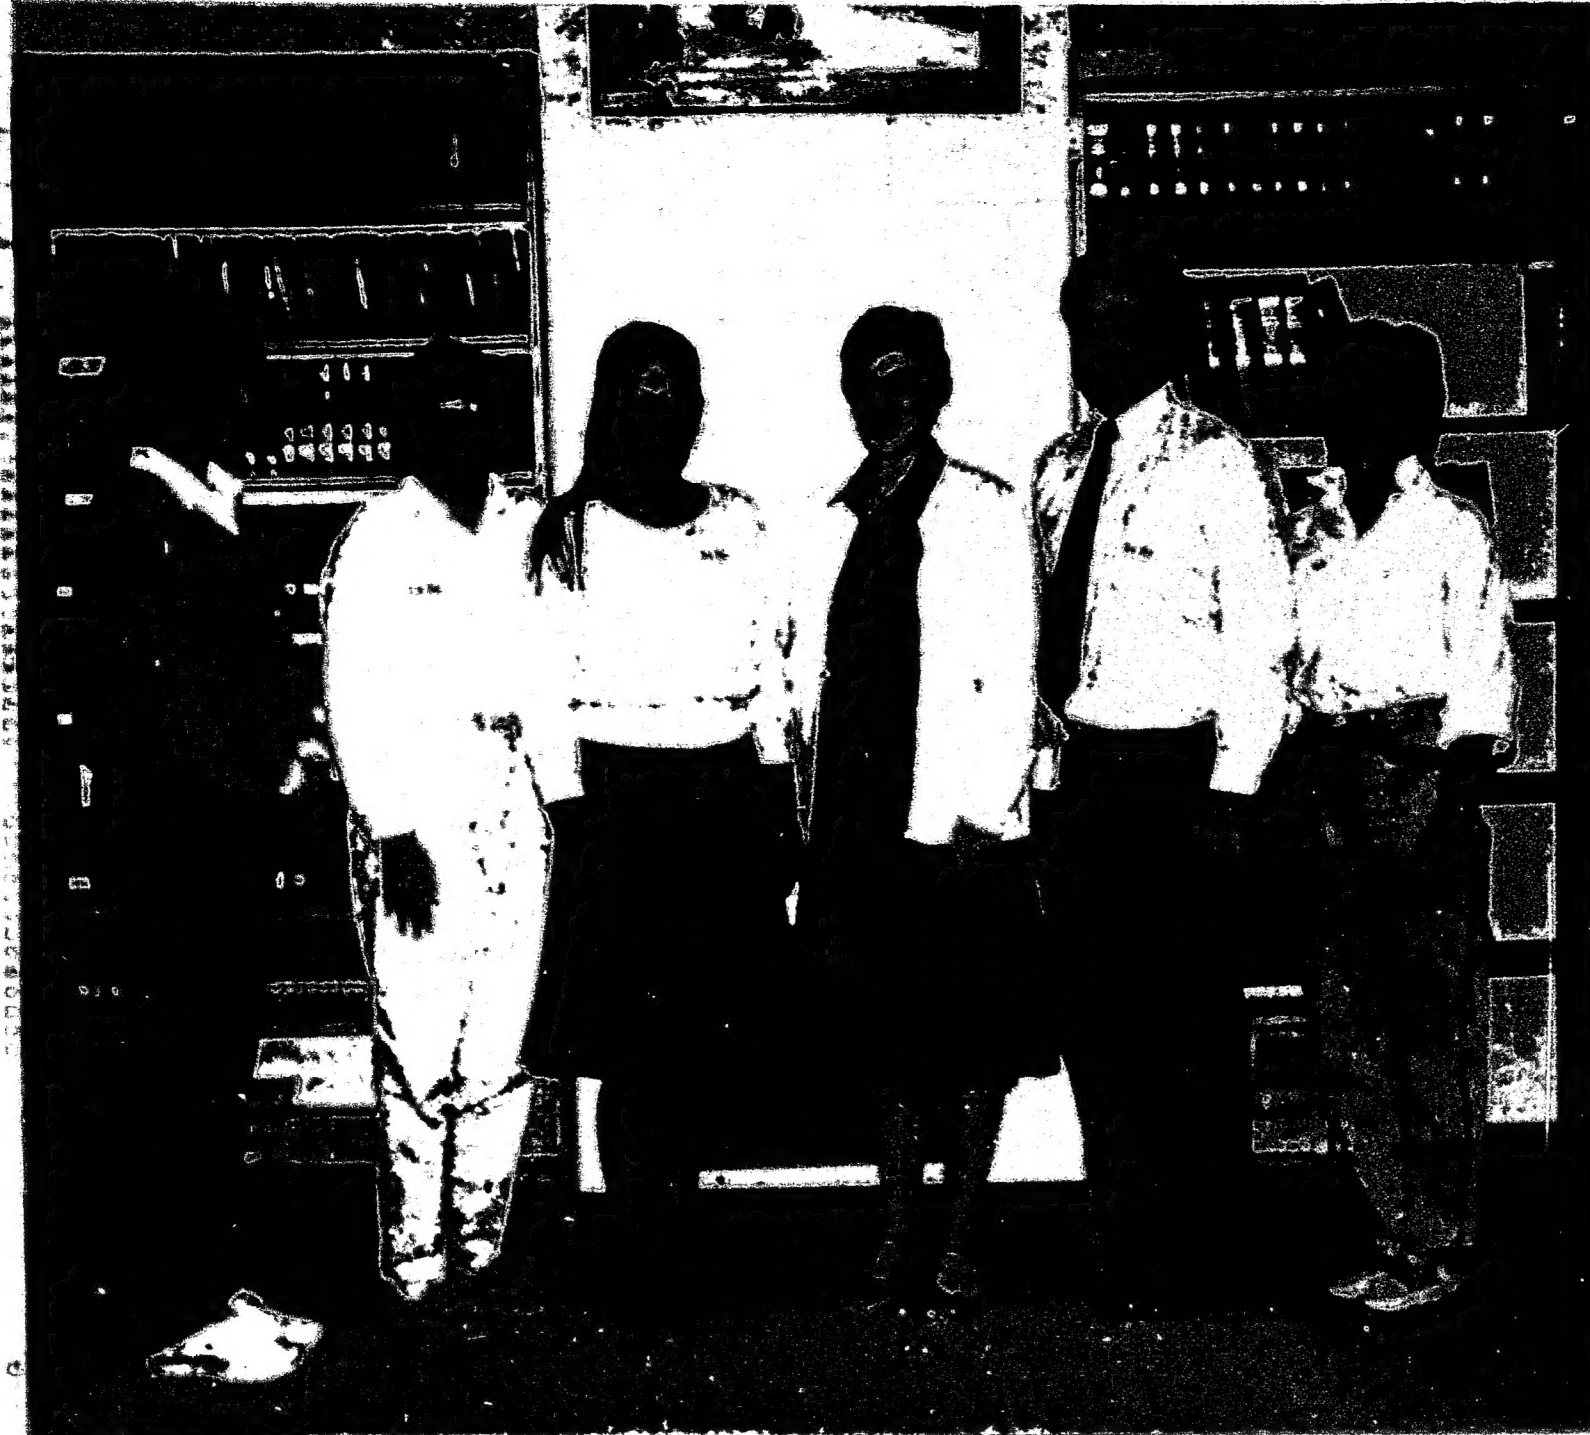

Scott Hartford will be a Grade 5 teacher at Crescent Park School this school year. Mr. Hartford received his bachelor's degree from the University of Maine at Farmington, completing his student teaching in Brunswick and Topsham. He has also worked with emotionally disturbed students at the Mallet School, in Farmington, as a practicum student. He was also a substitute teacher at the Williams-Cone School, in Topsham.

the past 12 years at Rawlins (Wyo.) High School. She has also taught courses at Western Wyoming College. She received her bachelor's degree from Colorado Women's College and received her master's degree from Middlebury College. Broad Leaf School of English, and Oxford University. Ms. Hembree also completed graduate work at the University of Wyoming and Rutgers University.

Earl Lamoreau Jr. is a new science and mathematics teacher at Telstar High School. Mr. Lamoreau received his bachelor's degree in engineering physics from UMO, and for the past three years has been an undergraduate instructor for the UMO Physics Department. Prior to that he was an academic tutor at UMO, and was the environmental science coordinator for the UMO Upward Bound program, planning educational and environmental conservation field trips for economically disadvantaged high school students. Mr. Lamoreau has been a substitute teacher at school in Old Town, Orono, Veazie and Richmond; was a mathematics and computer science teacher for the UMO Upward Bound program and has been a science consultant for the Graham School, in Veazie, Maine.

Elizabeth LaVallee, of Bethel, is also a new English teacher at Telstar High School. Mrs. LaVallee has spent the last 10 years teaching English and language arts at Oxford Hills High School. Prior to that she taught English at Telstar, from 1974 to 1978. She also taught at Leonard Junior High School, in Old Town, Maine.

She received her bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Maine at Orono. She has been involved in D.E.C.S. support groups for alcohol and drug education, assertive discipline, writing projects, career education, and guidance services. She also has extensive alpine ski coaching and swimming instruction experience.

Carol Nielson, of Bethel, is a new elementary creative and talented teacher. For the past 19 years Mrs. Nielson has been teaching in the Rumford school system. Since 1982 she has been the full-time teacher/coordinator of their Gifted and Talented program, grades K-12. She received her bachelor's degree in elementary education from West Chester State University, in Pennsylvania, and received her master's degree in gifted and talented education from Millersville State University, also in Pennsylvania. She has extensive training in gifted and talented education and has participated in many special programs and workshops, among them the Maine Summer Training Institute for Teachers of the Gifted and Talented in 1987.

Eileen Opie will be the new special education resource room teacher at the Ethel Bisbee School. Miss Opie received her bachelor's degree in elementary and special education from the University of Montana. For the past year she was a habilitation training specialist for the Montana Developmental Center, in Boulder. Prior to that she spent two years serving as a special education teacher-volunteer for the Institute for the Mentally Handicapped without Families through the U.S. Peace Corps in Tunisia. While in Tunisia she established an educational program for profoundly retarded/emotionally disturbed children. Prior to leaving the Peace Corps, she trained two Tuisians, who have since continued the program.

She completed her student teaching as a special education teacher and became a tutor for learning disabled children in the Lewis and Clark public school, in Missoula, Mont.

Tammy Reed is the new Grade 4 teacher at Crescent Park School. Miss Reed received her bachelor's degree in elementary education with an emphasis on reading, from Washington State University. She completed her student teaching in a Grade 2 classroom in Richmond, Wash., and was a full-time Grade 1 teacher at the Captain Gray

Elementary School in Pasco, Wash. She has also taught in Alaska while reading improvement through migrant night school in the Pasco school system and taught Grade 2 through the summer school program.

Miss Reed grew up in the Bethel area before moving to Alaska with her family. She completed her education in Alaska, Montana and Washington State.

Karen Robinson is the new Andover Elementary School principal and part-time Chapter I teacher. [See interview in Aug. 3 Citizen.] Mrs. Robinson holds a bachelor's degree in elementary education and a master's degree in reading from the University of Southern Maine. She was a Grade 5 teacher in the Windham school system for seven years. She became a language arts consultant for Woolwich Central School in 1982, and in 1985 she became the Chapter I reading room teacher at the Nathan Clifford School, in Portland, Maine. She has also been a reading teacher at the Maine Youth Center in South Portland.

Her background includes extensive work in reading and language arts; she has been a presenter at workshops on writing process, whole language, curriculum development, and staff development and supervision. While in Woolwich, she was also administrator for the Chapter I program.

Newry moratorium

was that a great number of people lost their jobs."

A number of people expressed concern over what would happen to the local economy if a moratorium were put into effect. Les Otten, president of Sunday River Skiway Corp., said a moratorium would be a serious financial hardship to his company.

Burt Mills, who works at the skiway and lives in Newry, said a moratorium would not only cost jobs at the skiway but throughout the area. For example, he pointed out, 29 percent of the business of Western Maine Supply last year came from development in Newry.

A number of residents looked on the moratorium as something that would handcuff them economically. Jo Baker said, "This moratorium is taking away your, and my, right as a citizen [to develop a piece of property.]"

Jack Dennis agreed. "If I want to sell some property to a developer, it's going to cost me a lot of money [because development would not be allowed]. A moratorium is not the answer."

Most of the speakers seemed to agree with that proposition.

There was less unanimity when it came to suggestions on what to do about the solid waste problem. Currently Newry pays Bethel $35,000 annually to dispose of about 400 tons of household trash in the Bethel landfill. (Sunday River's construction debris is handled separately by the skiway itself, sending that debris to other landfills.)

Of the 400 tons of household trash, 65 percent comes from the skiway, although Mr. Mills pointed out that this percentage will undoubtedly increase as the skiway builds more condos. The skiway is the largest taxpayer in town, paying 79 percent of the total town taxes, according to Mr. Otten, and thus paying a greater percentage for trash disposal than the percentage of trash originating at the mountain.

Skip King, a skiway employee and a member of the town's Solid Waste Committee, calculated that the town is paying Bethel $87 per ton for use of the Bethel landfill. For $65 a ton the town could be shipping waste to a commercial landfill and dumping there, he pointed out.

He then admitted, under questioning by Rockie Graham, of Albany, that the $65/ton price did not include setting up a transfer station to get the trash ready for shipping outside the area. These set-up costs—including testing to make certain a site would be acceptable to the DEP and purchasing the site—would cost about $150,000.

Decisions to be made regarding a solid waste solution must sort out a number of alternatives. Ones mentioned Monday night included whether to go with a transfer station or have door-to-door pickup. Other alternatives already being discussed in town include whether to contract with a commercial landfill as the ultimate destination for town trash or contract with an incinerator.

Speaking at the Bethel Rotary Club's breakfast meeting yesterday (Tuesday), the head of the Norway/South Paris Solid Waste District said there were a lot more alternatives than those obvious ones. For example, said Al Soule, there is a possibility of a regional transfer station being built in Oxford. There is also a possibility of Norway/South Paris experimenting with a self-contained methane-producing mulching system, for which outside trash would be solicited.

There is even the possibility, he said, of a number of small towns getting together and putting up a modest-sized incinerator of their own.

And, he added, there is always the benefit of recycling. In the past year, he said, Norway/South Paris has saved $18,000 just on paper being recycled.

Newry's Solid Waste Committee Chairman Sig Sysko said his committee is moving ahead to find solutions and invited all interested citizens to help out.

While most of those at the hearing seemed to regard any moratorium as an invasion of their rights, many also noted that they were not at all in favor of the changes taking place in town. "Hi! Berry said, "I'm not against growth, but I'm not sure that we want this kind of growth. We'll be another North Conway in 15 years."

Steve Crone, who used to live in Newry and now lives in Mason, said, "Money is important, but it's not the only thing to weigh." The quality of life is what's important, he said.

Mr. Otten took responsibility for the changes taking place in the Sunday River area of town. "My cards are on the table," he said. "I'm a skiway man; I entertain people; I build condos."

But, he added, "I don't want to see Newry turn into a North Conway. I don't want to push what I'm doing on my end of town onto this end of town."

Newry Planning Board and Board of Selectmen have both stated their opposition to the proposed building moratorium.

"Frankly, I can't see the connection," said Selectman Bill Wight. "The petition talks about stopping development because of solid waste, but stopping development is not going to solve our solid waste problem."

First Selectman Steve Wight agreed. "No matter what happens with the moratorium vote, solid waste will still be here. The town needs to concentrate on the waste issue."

Selectman Roger Hanscom has said, "The moratorium would do nothing to solve the problem. Further, it is felt that the moratorium might be illegal, because the law states that a moratorium must be necessary in order to be implemented. Since the proposed ordinance would not help solve the solid waste problem, it is felt that the moratorium might be illegal and be challenged in court."

The Newry Planning Board, in a statement issued Aug. 24, said, "The Planning Board acknowledges the potential for a solid waste problem, however, the purpose of this ordinance appears to be to stop development and not address the problems of the dump. It is the feeling of the board that there are better ways of resolving the problem."

Voters will decide the issue at a Special Town Meeting, Sept. 12.

Tri-Town Rescue is taking orders for their birthday calendars. If someone has not contacted you and you want to participate in this fundraiser, contact Lorraine Mills or Lillian Herrick for this area. For the price of the calendar you get six free listings of birthdays and/or anniversaries; there is a very small charge for each additional listing. The price of the calendars is reasonable and they would make good Christmas presents, and it will help support your rescue unit.

Tri-Town is also holding a Shop and Save supper as a fundraiser, on Tuesday, Sept. 13, at the Legion Hall. Tickets must be obtained before Sept. 6 from Kathy Bartlett. As Lillian Herrick for this area. For the price of the calendar you get six free listings of birthdays and/or anniversaries; there is a very small charge for each additional listing. The price of the calendars is reasonable and they would make good Christmas presents, and it will help support your rescue unit.

The Greenwood Historical Society will meet Wednesday, Sept. 7, at 7:30 p.m. at the Society building on Main Street. The Greenwood Fire Department will meet Tuesday, Sept. 6, at 7 p.m. at the Fire Station. The cow chip casino seemed to be well-received and the Fire Department appreciates all the support.

Charlie and Jeannette Knight had for company the last two weeks their daughter, Marianne, and husband, Leslie Gammone, of East Waterford; Marianne's grandson, Christopher; Leslie's two granddaughters, Melissa and Chrissy McDaniels, of Norway; Charlie's sister, Marjorie Hatfield, of South Paris; Richard Stanley, of South Paris; Charlie's nephews, Wayne and Dennis Knight, who are sons of Charlie's deceased brother, George, and four of Wayne's children and one of Dennis', all of Sanford.

Clayton Mills visited Lee Mills Friday. They like to get together and play cribbage. John and Lorraine Mills were both ill with the flu all weekend. Somehow it seems an insult to have flu bugs in the summer.

Jeannette Knight called on her grandson, Bruce Campbell, and girlfriend, Laurie Parsons, at Market Square in South Paris, where he has an apartment. He works at Goldstreet Restaurant in South Paris.

At the last meeting of the Historical Society the newsletters were handed out. If you did not get one please contact one of the members, such as Denise Swan. The town was again at the rumor that Charlotte Cole was involved in a shotgun wedding last week. For a time no one was sure whether she was wedding the shotgun or was the major participant or both. Such excitement! Alas, however, it seems our most confirmed bachelorette is remaining one, at least for the time being, as she informs me it was only a skit done at a variety show Thursday evening to benefit the Woodstock Historical Society and the Franklin Grainger. I understand the place was packed, as friends and relatives gathered to witness what might be their only opportunity to see Charlotte as a bride—but then who knows—this has been a strange year—she may surprise us all yet.

Jason and Phyllis Smith, of Bethel, Jeannette Knight's cousin and wife, called to see Jeannette and Charlie one day this week.

Herman Cole and his helper, Becky, of North Waterford, and his daughter-in-law, Evelyn Whitney, from Florida, visited Charlotte Cole Saturday.

Charlie and Jeannette Knight called on her daughter, Marianne, and family at East Waterford, Thursday evening. Helen Chase accompanied Charlotte Cole to Ledgerview Monday. They visited friends and relatives and Charlotte played guitar, harmonica and sang to entertain some of the patients there. After that they stopped in to Mountain View Apartments to visit Lena Kangas and to play cards with Dora and Elmer Dingley.

Charlie and Jeannette Knight attended the Sylvester reunion at Beverly Sylvester's, in Andover last month.

Visitors at the John Mills' this week have been Geraldine Shumura, of Bethel, Rev. Lyle Van Horn, of Mexico, and Mr. and Mrs. David Thurston, of Albany.

Mr. and Mrs. James Bennett, from Northfield, Vt., were vacationing at Bennett's camp on South Pond for a week recently.

Jeannette Knight visited her aunt, Fannie Baker, in West Newfield the week of Aug. 21.

The town was saddened to hear of the death of Willard Farwell last week. He lived here many years and had many friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Bennett returned Tuesday from a week camping at Cathedral Pines in Elkins. Also camping with them were Mr. and Mrs. Elden Hathaway, of Bryant Pond.

Dianne Campbell, granddaughter of Charlie and Jeannette Knight, will return to the University of Southern Maine in Portland for her third year of nursing's training the first week in September.

This year she will room with three other girls in Falmouth and commute to the Portland campus. Their youngest granddaughter graduated in June from Oxford Hills High School and started July 11 at Mansfield Beauty Academy, in Lewiston, majoring in cosmetology. She also works nights at Kimball's Quick Stop and Chef's Table Restaurant, in South Paris and Norway.

Notes from the Woodstock Historical Society

"The wilderness was all I could see at first. Here was a city where bridges spanned the great central river and that spread out beyond both banks in broad avenues and circles and parks. There was the overwhelming majesty of Notre-Dame, the long, slender walls of the Louvre, the great Arch of Triumph, the triumphal arch of the Place de la Concorde, the Eiffel Tower.

And following is a passage on London. The Tower of London was indeed a mighty fortress. St. Paul's and Westminster Abbey were surely venerable. The Houses of Parliament and Big Ben seemed engagingly gothic. Buckingham Palace was vast, impressive. The city's museums offered untold riches. Its parks were lovely. London was rich in history and architecture.

Paris was an explosion of the fame of the late Grace of Monaco.

Her career was the ultimate fulfillment of the American dream. She first makes it to the top in Hollywood, playing an instant American aristocrat, and then becomes a princess with a string of titles and a castle on the Riviera. She was the international celebrity whose regal image permeated the public mind through countless newspaper photographs and magazine covers."

NEWS FROM THE BETHEL AREA Health Center

The Occupational Health program at the Bethel Area Health Center is in the development stage and will soon include Elissa Thibodeau RPT, physical therapist.

A graduate of Boston University and Sargent College of Allied Health Professionals, Elissa is licensed in both the states of Maine and Massachusetts as a therapist. She has worked in a variety of settings over the years, including the Maine Medical Center, in Portland, the Rumford Community Hospital, and most recently in private practice. Much of this experience has been with job-related injuries from the area mills. She has also worked with Andover Wood Products as they instituted an injury prevention program for employees that included exercises and discussion of how to avoid injuries.

Over the years, Elissa has developed an appreciation of the strong need in this community for an occupational health program. Such a program will assist in management, the employees and health care providers to work together to provide safe and healthful workplaces.

Elissa and her husband, Brad, live in East Andover in an old home they have been restoring for 13 years. Their son, Nathaniel, is entering the 3rd Grade at Andover Elementary School this fall.

NEWS FROM THE BETHEL AREA Health Center

The Occupational Health program at the Bethel Area Health Center is in the development stage and will soon include Elissa Thibodeau RPT, physical therapist.

A graduate of Boston University and Sargent College of Allied Health Professionals, Elissa is licensed in both the states of Maine and Massachusetts as a therapist. She has worked in a variety of settings over the years, including the Maine Medical Center, in Portland, the Rumford Community Hospital, and most recently in private practice. Much of this experience has been with job-related injuries from the area mills. She has also worked with Andover Wood Products as they instituted an injury prevention program for employees that included exercises and discussion of how to avoid injuries.

Over the years, Elissa has developed an appreciation of the strong need in this community for an occupational health program. Such a program will assist mill management, the employees and health care providers to work together to provide safe and healthful workplaces.

Elissa and her husband, Brad, live in East Andover in an old home they have been restoring for 13 years. Their son, Nathan, is entering the 8th Grade at Andover Elementary School this fall.

A black and white photograph of a rustic wooden cabin with a steep, snow-covered roof, nestled in a snowy landscape with bare trees. The cabin has a prominent chimney and a small porch area. The surrounding area is covered in snow, and several leafless trees are visible in the background and foreground. The overall scene is quiet and wintry.

On the agenda is the subdivision application by the Glover Development Corp. for the Glover development. Also likely to be discussed is the formation of a committee to formulate a zoning plan for the town.

By CLARICE GIBSON

George brought home a pad the other week and said that they would like me to start writing again for the paper. I knew Ben Gordon was having a cookout on the Mountain, Aug. 21, so I figured this was a good week to start.

Things have been hectic here for the last five or six weeks as it began with having the trim painted on the house; then we had to get a whole new roof (including new 2x4's) put on over the two porches, bathroom and whatever room. This week we are having vinyl siding put on three sides of the house. Yesterday (Aug. 24) we had the men putting on siding, my brother came to start laying tile on Ira's bathroom floor in his new home, and Wilfred came to put a radio into Frankie's truck. The rain came down most of the day so when people came in they tracked in mud. We have to finish cleaning out Mom's apartment by Sept. 1, so not too many dull moments around here.

Most of the day was good for the cookout, but we did occasionally have showers; but Ben had put a cover on his porch. Ben furnished hamburgers, hot-dogs, drinks and had brought up many delicious cakes from his bakery in New York. Those coming brought up many salads, vegetable dishes and fruit dishes. Coffee, tea and soft drinks were for anyone.

I suspect I have probably overlooked some people, but here goes: the late, Ben Gordon; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gibson; Mr. and Mrs. Avery Angvine; Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Angvine; Mr. and Mrs. Dick Angvine; and Timmy; Ricky Angvine; Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Cordova and daughter, Santana; Kristy, Dusty and Sam Angvine; Mr. and Mrs. Dan Hannon; Amy and Marybeth; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mason; Becky Kendall; Mr. and Mrs. Bob Davis; Betty Blake; Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Hutchins; Shilo and Misty; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Valentine; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Murphy; Mr. and Mrs. Chuckie Mason, Charles IV, Jennifer and Mary; Keith Stevens; Pastor John Clayton from the Nazarene Church; Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Annis; Mr. and Mrs. Victor Coolidge, Sarah, Jessica and Victoria; Mr. and Mrs. Ed Vachon; Carol, Mason; Mr. and Mrs. Leland Brown; Mr. and Mrs. Dana Douglas; Mr. and Mrs. David Mason, Tabatha, Kasey and Sabrina; Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Lovejoy; Mr. and Mrs. Lemme Shaw, Joe and Jeni; Terry Campbell and Diana Poland. I believe these were all there were from the Bethel area. Frank York and Alan Pollard, from Bryant Pond. Oh yes, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Shumamura, of our road, and also Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bond, of Fiskefield, N.H. Mr. Bond is a brother of Thelma Merrill and gets down a lot of weekends to visit Thelma who is now in the Ledgewood Nursing Home in West Paris, coming from Waisfield, Vt. and Patsy Ouel, Nancy and Don Demas and Jimmy Baird, Matthew and Melinda Bishop and son, of Norway; Roxie, Scott and Jana Mason; John, Monica, Tina and Tanya Corriveau, of Gilead; and Ernest Angvine, of New Mexico, who was home on leave from the Army in Germany. Aug. 21 was also George's birthday, so his brothers, Frankie and Wilfred Gibson, went to Lewiston for supper Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam McCoy had as weekend visitors Allen and Sally Greenough and family, of Philadelphia, Pa.

What a contrast in our weather! From the sweltering heat we now have to have our heat on and I have been told some places in the Bethel area have already got a frost.

Stan and Althea Brown flew from Portland to Salt Lake City, Utah, Aug. 2, where they were met by three grandchildren. They then drove to Rock Springs, Wyo., to Corey and Pat Brown's home. While visiting, the two families spent four days at Yellowstone National Park seeing many of the park's attractions. They also saw where some of the fires in the park are and were. They flew back Aug. 16.

John and Sue Laban's son Matthew left Aug. 26 to resume his studies at the University of New Hampshire, Sept. 5, their son Christopher starts at the University of Maine, Orono.

Joe Shumamura went deep sea fishing and brought us some of his bluefish. I baked it in milk and we really enjoyed it. Ginny McCoy went blueberrying with Clayton and Mary Sweet and met Ernest and Alberta Angvine. They all brought home some blueberries.

Help me, Lord, to make friends with those I may have hurt.
So often without thinking I make people feel
Teach me to be respectful to other people's needs.
That I may speak with kindness and follow with the crowd.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Leighton and sons, Alan and Todd, of Enfield, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hastings last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Wilkes, of Cumberland, visited the Bartlett Homestead on Aug. 21.
Mr. and Mrs. Chester Harrington hosted their annual corn fest on Aug. 21 with the following present: Mr. and Mrs. Gary Fuller, Stephanie and Bethany, of Locke Mills; Mr. and Mrs. Dawson Smith and Sean, of Bucksport; Mr. and Mrs. Scott Saunders, of Charleston; Mrs. Dori Hallman and Heather, of Durham; Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Bean, Staci and Jennifer; Ralph Remington, of York; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Crockett, Jason and Aaron; Debbie Morton, of Andover; Lynn Bauchette, of Bethel; Dirk Smith, who has been visiting his grandparents for a month, returned home with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dawson Smith.

Mrs. Fay Kimball was in Stephens Memorial Hospital last week for tests and observation. Mrs. Laurence Pelletier, of Manchester, N.H., was here while her mother, Mrs. Fay Kimball, was in the hospital.

Mrs. Flossie Bernier was at Black Mountain Scout Camp last week acting as archery teacher. Danielle Bernier was also there.

Mrs. Charlotte Kimball and Mrs. Velora Tuominen and baby Brianna visited Mrs. Myra Foster, Aug. 20. John Foster was a luncheon guest and Mrs. Myra Foster was in Norway, Aug. 23, for doctors' appointments. Mrs. Myra Foster attended a Christmas Around the World Party at the home of Mrs. June Stearns, of Rumford Corner, and Mrs. Myra Foster were in Norway, Aug. 23, for doctors' appointments. Mrs. Myra Foster attended a Christmas Around the World Party at the home of Mrs. June Stearns, of Rumford Corner, Aug. 24.

On Aug. 25 I was guest of honor at a birthday party at the Country Way restaurant in South Paris. Those present were: Mrs. June Stearns, of Rumford Corner; Mrs. Clara Hamlin, of South Waterford; Mr. and Mrs. John Foster and David, of Andover; Mrs. Jo Tyler and Chris of Dixfield; Mrs. Cindi Hamlin and friend, Bill, and children, Dawn, Dori, Jay and Jason, of South Waterford; Miss Sherri Hamlin, of South Waterford; Mr. and Mrs. Rick Westleigh and Eric, of Rumford Corner, and Albert Foster. Hope I haven't left anyone out. The tables were decorated with balloons, and the beautiful birthday cake was a gift of the management. I also received gifts at home and there.

AT LAST WEEKEND'S TRAPPERS' CONVENTION at Neil Olson's, in East Bethel, Brian and Jason Libby and Bob Todd, of Union, N.H., were among the many vendors selling trapping supplies. The annual affair, which was co-sponsored this year by Woodstream Corp., of Pennsylvania, saw new records set for attendance. Over the three-day course of events, thousands of people, from 22 states and two Canadian provinces, made their way to East Bethel. Woodstream Corp. has agreed to co-sponsor the event again next year.

There's no more vivid reminder of aging than reading historical events you remember personally. No fashions, creases nor hair dye can alter these facts. The devastating hurricane of 1938, which struck New England, was less severe here than in the Connecticut and Massachusetts areas and we called it a blow-down. Mary Chase, a summer resident, came up from Kennebunkport that night and I recall her vivid telling of high winds and bits of debris from trees blowing about, but she missed the trees which were crashing down. I recall the arch in front of the Fuller house, across the road, blowing down halfway to the ground. In the morning it was still standing, but leaning. Many folks had roofs damaged and trees down near their homes. At the Douglas home a tree broke the pig pen and a visiting lady, who tried to help capture the young escaping pig, got ran in to from behind by the excited porker and had a short ride on its back. Later, the Davis mill, of Bethel, set up a mill at Lakeside to saw up the blowdown pines, which were floated down the Umbagog. This operation lasted two or three years.

Margaret and Tex entertained the Griffin families at their fourth annual homecoming barbecue. Guests came from Boothbay Harbor, Old Orchard Beach, Westbrook, Sebago, Lebanon, N.H. and Venice, Fla. A large tent protected them from the brief showers. The youngest guest was 11-day-old Sarah Mitchell Trotter, of Lebanon, N.H. Margaret's latest great-grandchild, Giselle Cameron celebrated her birthday with family and friends at the Cameron camp. Later the group made a visit in Canada as relatives there were unable to attend because of illness.

THIS WEEK AT THE Moses Mason House

All members and friends of the Bethel Historical Society are reminded that the 23rd annual meeting will be held Thursday, Sept. 1, in the meeting room of the Dr. Moses Mason House, beginning at 7:30 p.m. A 6:30 potluck supper will precede the meeting. Anyone attending the supper should bring a hot dish, salad or dessert.

The annual meeting will feature the report of the Nominating Committee and a report by the president on activities of the Society since the last annual meeting. The Marjorie MacArthur Noll Volunteer Service Award will be presented to an outstanding volunteer by Society Trustee Chairwoman Margaret Joy Tibbets. Featured speaker for the evening will be Dr. Joseph A. Conforti, director of the New England Studies Program at the University of Southern Maine, who will speak on "Reinventing New England." Anyone interested in attending this meeting is cordially invited to do so.

Nearly half of the 1988 goal of $7,500 has been realized to date in the Society's Endowment Campaign. Among the latest contributors are Marvin and Cynthia Goulet; Bethel, in memory of Cynthia Goulet; Sara Kolb, Centerville, Vt., in memory of Bryant C. Bean; Archie and Jane Young, Bethel, in memory of Archie and Ruth Young; Joan T. Wiese, Bethel; Rev. Clifford and Elizabeth Laws, Kittery Point; Herbert Morton III, Andover, Mass.; Helen Morton, Newry; Robert M. Young, Jr., Essex, Mass.; J. Irving and Amy Penner Stroud, Victor, Mont., in memory of Rev. William Penner, former pastor of the Bethel Methodist Church. Much appreciation is expressed for these generous contributions.

An inquiry was received this week from an individual interested in learning if her biological mother were still alive. All the information that is available is that her mother attended Gould Academy sometime in the 1880s or 1900s, was from a local farm family, and was named Anna Andrey. Her maiden name is not known, but she later married a man named Thompson. Anyone who may have suggestions as to the identity of this woman is urged to call the Society office, at 824-2908.

Regular summer tours at the Dr. Moses Mason House Museum will end Sept. 4. After that time, tours will only be by appointment or during regular business hours (M-F, 8-4) if a guide is available. Anyone wishing further information should call the Society office (824-2908).

A HEAD-ON COLLISION IN WOODSTOCK left seven people injured Monday. Above, rescuers work to extricate Shane Svach, 16, of Bryant Pond, from the vehicle he was driving on Route 232. Svach, the most seriously injured of the victims, suffered a fractured jaw and chest contusions. He was taken to Stephens Memorial Hospital, then transferred to Central Maine Medical Center, where by Tuesday afternoon he was listed in good condition. Christopher Hoyt, 14, of Bryant Pond, a passenger in the vehicle driven by Svach, suffered a broken arm in the collision, and Benjamin Hoyt, 10, sustained multiple bruises. Both were treated and released at SMH. The driver of the second vehicle, Denise McKenna, 32, of Rumford, suffered a fractured right wrist and femur and was operated on at SMH. Two children riding in her vehicle suffered abrasions and contusions; a third child, riding in a child safety seat, received only a minor bump on the head.

The Willing Workers held a supper at the Community House, Thursday evening, for the families and friends of the association. It was well attended. They had a silent auction after the supper. The supper was a potluck style, with each bringing something for the meal.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Miclon took supper with their son and family, Mr. James Miclon, in honor of Mrs. Ray Miclon's birthday.

The coons got into the corn as soon as it was ready to eat. I picked it clean and froze all I could and then they found some I didn't.

Sunday I went to Bridgton to see my sister Lillian and Sylvia and Arthur Andrews. Mr. and Mrs. Richard Goldsmith dropped in for a visit.

Esther Davis had the misfortune of having the car door blown against her leg Thursday as she was taking something out of the car. It wasn't broken, but badly bruised below her knee.

Sgt. David Hathaway left Monday evening for Darmstadt, Germany, where he'll be stationed for three years. Donna and Ryan will follow soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Niro, Michelle and Dana, of Milford, Mass., spent the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Hathaway. Friday evening they all attended the wedding of another daughter, Karen Hathaway, to Denis Fortier, at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, in Berlin, N.H., and a reception at the White Mountain Chalet. SSGT. David and Donna Hathaway, who have been visiting his parents, attended also.

Mr. and Mrs. Denis Fortier and daughters, Amy and Heather, and nephew Eric Brown spent Sunday evening with Karen's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Hathaway.

Edith Deegan, Esther Davis and Phyllis Stevens, of Oxford, went to Bar Harbor Saturday for a tour of the area. They spent two nights at the Bar Harbor Motel. They took a cruise on Frenchman's Bay. They took a bus tour and visited Cadillac Mt. and Thunder Hole, Sunday. They also shopped in some of the

THIS QUILT, made by Holly Bancroft Brown, pictures the Hastings' farm, in East Bethel. The center was made by Holly and the squares on each side and across the top and bottom were made by the children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren of Robert and Florence Hastings. The quilt was given to the couple in 1986 on their 60th wedding anniversary. The quilt was one of the many featured at the Middle Intervale Meeting House Society's annual quilt show last Saturday. The quilts dated from the 1800s to the present.

AGENCY CAN HELP ELDERLY

The Western Area Agency on Aging's Outreach workers are assisting persons, 60 and over, in filing applications for the 1988 Property Tax and Rent Refund. This also includes persons age 65 and over, if receiving federal disability payments. This also includes the low cost drug card. Deadline for applying is Oct. 15.

They also have information and applications for the so-called Stripper Well Weatherization Program. This program is for homeowners 60 years of age and over, whose household income for 1987 did not exceed $13,400. This provides rebates of 50 percent of material cost and 50 percent of labor cost, not exceeding $750, on energy conserving projects since Oct. 1, 1987, such as insulation, caulking, weatherstripping and tight fitting doors or windows.

Applications under this program should be made as soon as possible, as the program will end when funds are exhausted.

Persons needing assistance or wanting more information on these programs should call the WAA office in Lewiston, toll free, 1-800-482-0976.

I guess everyone is getting cooled off. I presume children are happily getting ready to go to school next week.

Joe Vatcher went to Massachusetts Tuesday, Aug. 23, to bring his sister, Fannie Whitten, up for another visit. She likes it up here.

The West Paris Senior Citizens are meeting at the Legion Hall, Sept. 6, for a potluck dinner, after two months of not having a meeting. Sarah Churchill, from Western Maine Agency on Aging, will be there. Avis Ellingwood will exhibit her crafts. Should be interesting.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Isley and Jan have been to Nova Scotia for several days.

There will be a dance at the West Paris Grange Hall, Sept. 3. Richard Felt's band will play. There will be door prizes and homemade pies, hot dogs, drinks and coffee at intermission. Come join the fun.

Callers at the "Root" Lawrences have been Mr. and Mrs. Odell Heath, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Abbott, Joe Vatcher, Fannie Whitten and Mione Record.

Doris Lawrence called on Mr. and Mrs. Richard Felt and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Silver. Sharon has tendonitis, so the good sport that Roy is, he's cheerfully taken over the job of canning and freezing. Don't get too tired, Roy.

CHAMBER HOSTING BREAKFAST

The Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce will host a business breakfast next Wednesday, Sept. 7, in the Moses Mason House meeting room, at 7:30 a.m.

Guest speaker will be Shawn Brennan, a representative of Blue Cross/Blue Shield. He will address the issue of rising health care costs and how they affect insurance costs, and what the community can do to help hold down health costs.

Fresh muffins, coffee and tea will be provided at no cost, although donations will be accepted. All are welcome.

Mr. and Mrs. Owen Wight spent last week, returning home Aug. 22, at Deer Isle. Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Wight and children, of Fairfield, and Mrs. Susan Bowie, Jennifer and Christopher visited them one day while they were there.

Norman Tetley returned home from Kennebec Valley Medical Center, Aug. 24, following knee surgery. He is more comfortable and having therapy daily.

Sylvia Harrington was on vacation last week. Gilberte Seeley and Sylvia Wight were her guests for a Chinese lunch and conversation one day.

Karlene Bachelder, Betsy Clark, Thelma Lowery, Louise Tetley, Gilberte

Seeley, Sylvia Wight and Olive Anderson were in Rumford bowling Aug. 23. Karlene Bachelder was high scorer on both triple and single, beating Gilberte Seeley by one point on both.

Miss Gretchen Wight will be assistant Kindergarten teacher at Bridgton for the coming school year.

The Ladies Circle will meet Sept. 6 at 7:30 at Freda Robertson's.

Yesterday and today have been almost unbelievable after so many days of heat and humidity.

About 1 o'clock, I took advantage of the coolness and left for my first climb in a long time. I started up the Bulldozer Road, then came to a road made since my last visit there. It was rough and rocky, with sticks left by a tractor, but a challenge, so I turned right to follow it.

Old roads hold a strong fascination for me. I like to prove them. One might say a weekly reminder of the lush lumbering days: a rutted trail going back to an old farm or maybe just a passage to a gravel pit. I knew quite well where this road would lead me. It was a quiet, mysterious ribbon that curled along between a stone wall and the woods, and here and there dappled with the gold of the sun. It is on a road like this that a partridge fluffed and contented likes to bask in the sun or wander away looking for a snack, when the day is old.

I sauntered along until I saw a good place to go over the wall to the farm fields. Then I stood in silence in my environment of fantastic beauty, reclaiming a scene which I had not seen in a long time.

All thought of a partridge drained from my mind, as I pushed onward and upward in the fields. I was wandering through that greatest of all art galleries, the great outdoors.

I stood where I could view the mountains—Patch, Peabody, Edgecomb, Long, Overset and others.

A warm wind was blowing, making ripples on the pond and nodding the grass. Silky pollen whipped past.

This hill is a place of glory. It's mottled with shades of green—avocado, lime—and hit-or-miss vegetation everywhere. To the northeast, far across the valley, a window shone in the sky. A barn and a house once stood on the hill. Now the only solid remains are a foundation rocks. But it scattered legacy, a precious thing.

The fields beckons at all hours. Early dew webs shimmer on the grass, while the valley below bakes in lemon warmth along with the flowers.

By noon we can stretch out while breeze battles with the sun and comes through.

At night it's ringed with brilliant stars teeter on our eyelids. Maybe a barks or an owl hoots.

To my right or left were crow-trees—evergreens, maples, oaks: cathedral place in which to meditate, when autumn comes I hope to stand here again, where sunlight chinks it w. yellow, red and orange—a many-colored tapestry, and outcroppings can be seen among the colors.

Moving back down the hill I passed a cow's snacking or resting in the shade of a tree, so contented.

I again crossed the wall leaving the spot where I could see the pond, plain and blue, and followed the road toward home.

All the while there were memories which are like fine, hot wires bound tightly about the heart, while others are like cool dew on hot and tired feet.

So I arrived at my home thinking of sudden change of weather. Maine, where nature seems unable to decide what it wants to serve. It might be a bit of J for breakfast but for dinner a winter of blizzard. However, today had been perfect and I had enjoyed it.

We were visited by "Laying Hens" this week. They deposited their eggs on the ground and in a farmer's yard—quite a lay!

We were visited by "Laying Hens" this week. They deposited their eggs on cars and in a farmer's yard—quite a laying spree. The Tuesday Club met with me this week. We were sorry that Katie Tammunen was unable to be with us. She had just returned from the hospital.

I had several callers this week: Kathy Curtis, Katherine Hakala, and "Nits" Hakala, town; my cousin Gertrude Whitman, South Paris, and her husband; my brother, Poland; and Lillian Strait Freepert. Wednesday, Dot Betts and I met with the teachers for lunch and spent the afternoon at Avis Stellhorn's in West Paris.

Rena Curtis returned from her trip to Canada and a visit with her son Kenneth in Ohio. On her arrival here she learned of the death of her brother's wife, so had to leave to go to services at Freeport.

We are glad to hear that Dixie Inman is better from her surgery and was able to visit Mr. and Mrs. Milton Inman on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Inman and members of the family have been at their cottage this week.

Forward Fellowship group met at the cottage of Beryl Bonney on Monday evening, Aug. 22, for a potluck supper and meeting, with six members present. Joyce Lamb volunteered to meet with the Goodwill group members to plan for the supper and entertainment in October. The next meeting will be on Sept. 26 at the church with a potluck supper preceding. There will be a silent auction after the meeting. The mystery package was won by Martha Day. Pokono was enjoyed after the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Vance Bacon and Mr.

and Mrs. Everett Chase were camping at Delia Powers Winslow Memorial Park last weekend.

Newton and Joyce Lamb have returned home after spending the summer at Camp Susan Curtis, where Joyce was employed as camp nurse.

Mrs. Alice Ruffuse, Amy and Arden, of Parkdale, Nova Scotia, and friend, Crystal, of Paradise, Nova Scotia, are spending a few days at the Inman cottage on Hicks Pond in Greenwood.

Pat and Larry Wyman had a full house and camp for Old Home Days. Visiting for the week were Pat's sister Wendy MacLean, her husband Ward, and children Erin and Seth, from Shrewsbury, Mass.; Pat's stepson Alan Knight, his wife Tereia and baby son Johnathan, from Newmarket, N.H.; Larry's brother Greg Wyman and wife Tricia, their children Tanya and Melissa, from Canton, Mass. Pat's mother Yvonne MacLean, from Cape Canaveral, Fla., has been visiting since July 30 and has just left to visit her daughter in Massachusetts. While here she visited with a friend, Minnie Akers. She also helped out at the bed and breakfast.

Andover Arms will soon have its gun shop open and Larry Wyman has been busy in his spare time stocking, pricing and setting up all the hunting and fishing supplies.

Larry's mother, Louise Goldberg, from Canton, Mass., stopped by for an overnight visit last week and wished Pat and Larry good luck in their new venture. Also stopping by for a look-see was Jason Schriber, Larry's 16-year-old godson. Jason flew a Cessna 152 from Sterling, Mass. This was his longest solo flight, landing on the Farrington Airport, in East Andover.

On Aug. 19 Andover Wood Products held their yearly picnic. Games for the younger children started at 2 p.m., headed by Carolyn Merrill, Dora Morton and Katie Levy. A softball game of employees against management was held at 4 p.m., with Heidi Belanger pitching for the employees. After the game, the picnicers enjoyed a dunking tank, manned by mill manager, Don Stecher. After being dunked a few times, Steve Hansen took his place. Nonie Conrad, Mark Coty and Roland Milligan all followed and each enjoyed getting wet.

A chicken barbecue was next on the agenda, followed by awards given to employees for five and ten years' service. An auction was held to raise money for scholarships for students.

Door prizes were drawn later, with Foster Davis receiving five free movie rentals from Deco's. Garth Conrad received $15 from Mill's Market, Debbie Lurnait received $15 from Dave Gregg's Store, Rick Richards received one load of wood, Edgar Garand received $25 from the Chicken Coop and Roland Milligan $50 from Shop 'N Save.

The evening finished with two games of tug-o-war.

The Woodstock Senior Citizens will meet on Thursday, Sept. 1, at 11:30 a.m., at the Boiler Room Restaurant, for their meeting and dinner. There will be a choice of chicken or fish special for the seniors, or you may order from the regular menu. Each one pays for their own dinner. Elden Hathaway is in charge of the program.

Franklin Grange #124 will meet on Monday, Sept. 5, for ladies night, with Peggy Blake in charge.

I need your news if I am to write it. Please call 665-2460.

Sunday, Sept. 4, is Rally Day at the Baptist Church Sunday School.

When you are having a sale or program you want in the paper, please get it to me at least a week early. I mail in my news Thursday morning and it is printed in the next Wednesday's paper.

ESSAY DEADLINE EXTENDED

The Aug. 19 deadline for the Essay Contest sponsored by the Community Lakes Association of Woodstock and Greenwood has passed, with few entries being submitted.

Because the Association wishes to judge all entries from students in Grades 1-12 of SAD #44 on a fair competition basis, the contest has been extended to Friday, Sept. 23. Librarians in Andover, Bethel and Woodstock remain prepared to assist any student requesting help in researching material for the essay topic: "What our rivers, streams, ponds and lakes mean to us and what we need to do to protect them." Essays may be left with the town librarians or mailed to Nancy Willard, Box 2160, Bryant Pond, 04219.

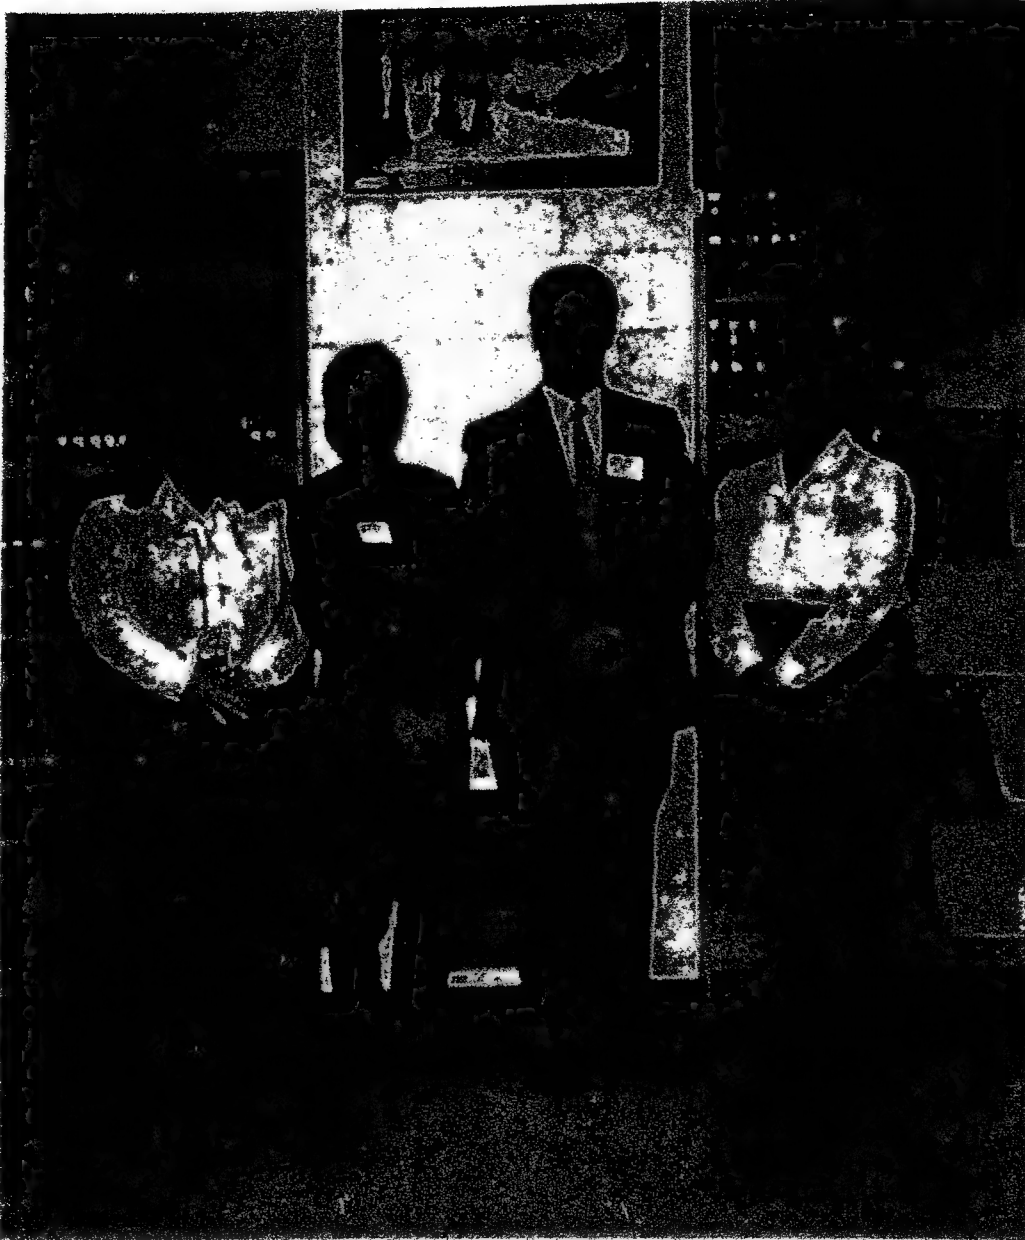

BETHEL INN GOLF

Results of the Couples Club championship were as follows: gross winners (183) Barbara and Dale Stevens; 2nd gross (191) Louise and John Morton; 3rd gross (194) Jane and Phil Rolfe.

Net winners (86/59) Nancy Cross and John Tapley; 2nd net (95/69) Carol and Hank Hatch; 3rd net (103/70) Hugette and Punky Davis.

Labor Day weekend will feature a scramble on both Sunday and Monday at 2 p.m. The Sunday scramble will be followed by a party at the Robb's. Sign up for these activities in the golf shop.

The Bethel Inn pro-member-guest tournament scheduled for Sunday, Sept. 11, at 1 p.m., still has a few openings. Call the golf shop for more details.

DIABETICS' SUPPORT GROUP

A support group for diabetics and their families will be offered by Stephens Memorial Hospital, to meet on Wednesday, Sept. 21, 7-8:30 p.m., in the Health Education Classroom, at 17 Winter St., Norway. Group leadership is shared by registered nurses Julia Harlow and Dot Turner, instructors for the ongoing diabetic classes offered through the Health Education Department.

CARD OF THANKS

A special "Thank you" to all my relatives and friends for the cards, flowers and visits while I was in the hospital and since my return home. They were all very much appreciated.

SCRAMBLING TO PREPARE AN F-15 fighter, rain-drenched Soesterberg Air Base ground crewmen make a last-minute check of the aircraft's Sidewinder air-to-air missiles before allowing the jet to take off on an interception training mission over Holland.

NO LONGER DRAWING WATER to keep Holland high and dry, the windmills on the "Kinderdijk" canal near Rotterdam now draw tourists with their cameras who admire the beauty and ingenuity of these Dutch landmarks.

North Paris airman enjoys being on front line of defense in Netherlands

SOESTERBERG AIR BASE, Netherlands—Nestled in the heart of the low-lying country famous for its dikes and windmills, lies a joint American-Dutch air base, a place considered by many of the airman stationed here as more of a vacation spot than a place to earn a living.

This easygoing nation of liberal Dutch people is where Sgt. Robert E. Isley, 25, son of Nathan N. and Roberta E. Isley, of North Paris, calls home while working to support this vital northern European NATO base.

The 32nd Tactical Fighter Squadron at Soesterberg Air Base maintains control of NATO airspace in northern West Germany by intercepting unidentified aircraft and conducting all-weather, air-to-air combat training operations with F-15 Eagle fighter aircraft. Around-the-clock readiness is ensured by keeping aircraft, pilots and ground crews on quick reaction status at all times.

"I'm required to weld aircraft engine components," said Isley, a welder and machinist apprentice. "I'm also tasked to build many one-of-a-kind equipment items unique to the base and the mission."

"I've learned many valuable skills and I'm thoroughly satisfied with my job. I'll be learning to become a machinist within a year. It's the best job to have anywhere."

While Soesterberg is small and doesn't offer all the amenities of other bases, its location on the European continent makes it an excellent jumping off point for visiting other countries.

"The base is more unique and different than anything I've experienced," said Isley. "It's a wonderful place to be stationed and I recommend it to all. I just miss the American way of life."

According to many of the airman who are stationed on Soesterberg, the base is perhaps the best-kept secret in the Air Force when it comes to being stationed in Europe.

"Holland is probably the best place to be stationed, as far as I'm concerned," said Isley. "I've made many Dutch friends and would even come back for a vacation after I've left the country."

Living in a foreign country means adapting to a different culture and customs, and Holland is no exception. From the seemingly liberal attitudes of its people to the national passion of bicycling, this New Jersey-sized nation of 14 million offers airman stationed here a unique variety of experiences.

"Holland has an extremely different way of doing everything," said Isley, a 1980 graduate of Oxford Hills High School. "I miss my hunting and fishing."

"The Dutch people have been very nice and are always helpful. I've adjusted to their way of life pretty well."

Isley and his wife, Maureen, have a son, Robert II.

Telstar Class of 1978 gets together Sept. 10

The Telstar Regional High School Class of 1978 will hold its 10th anniversary reunion next Saturday, Sept. 10, at Sunday River Ski Resort.

The activities will begin in the morning, at 11 a.m., at the Brookside Condominium, focusing on the indoor pool, the saunas, the tennis courts and the barbecue pits. (Bring your own picnic lunch and soft drinks.)

In the evening, activities will move to the South Ridge Center, where there will be catered hors d'oeuvres and live entertainment. The cost is $15 per couple.

Organizers are still looking for the following missing classmates: Kevin Rowe, Sibohn Flynn, Susan Packard, John Carlson, Ray Wirth, Marianne Cousins and Melinda Bean.

If you know the whereabouts of the above, or if you have any questions, contact Rhonda Cummings Baker.

ERVIL C. KENNETT

Ervil C. Kennett, 73, of Chatham, N.H., died suddenly Aug. 22, 1988 while a patient at Stephens Memorial Hospital.

Mr. Kennett was a combat veteran of World War II, serving in the European and Pacific theaters.

Mr. Kennett was a past president of the Maine Campground Owners (MECOA) as well as a past president of the nine-state region of the Northeast Campground Association. For 18 years Mr. Kennett owned and operated the South Arm Campground on the Richardson Lakes. At the 1988 Sturbridge Camping Conference, he received the Curtis Fuller Service Award. This award is in recognition of his unselfish service given to the camping industry over many years.

His early career was in professional photography, both portrait and commercial, serving as Arthur Fiedler's personal photographer on many occasions.

He is survived by his widow, Doris; a daughter, Donnie-Anne Arbogast, of New Berlin, Wis.; a son, Ervil, of Nashua, N.H.; and five grandchildren.

Mr. Kennett will be interred in the Kennett Cemetery on their land in Chatham. Contributions in his memory may be made to the NCA Scholarship Fund and sent to Dr. Gerry Harrison, 729 Kings Highway, Hancock, N.H., 03449.

ANNIE E. NILE

Annie E. Nile, 70, died Aug. 24, 1988 at Stephens Memorial Hospital following a long illness.

She was born in Bethel, Feb. 22, 1918, the daughter of Frank and Gladys Spinnery Chapman. Mrs. Nile was educated in Bethel schools. She was a homemaker and married William Sweet on April 13, 1945. He died July 18, 1961. She later married Hazen Nile on June 23, 1965. He died Jan. 10, 1983.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Gloria Snyder of West Bethel, and Olga Sweet of Bethel; two sons, William and Frank Sweet, both of Bethel; three brothers, Robert Chapman of Augusta, Harold Chapman of Lancaster, Pa. and Raymond Chapman of Gilead; a sister, Mrs. Gwendolyn Currier of Norway; five grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Memorial services were held Sunday, Aug. 28, 1988, at St. Mary's Hospital in Lewiston, where she had been a patient for four days.

She was born in Branch LeHabe, Nova Scotia, Canada, Oct. 25, 1898, the daughter of Abeah and Louise Lohmes Meisner. She attended Andover schools. She was married in Rumford to the late Harold "Harry" J. Gibbs. She attended the Andover Congregational Church.

Survivors include one daughter, Blanche Fitzherbert of Andover; two sisters, Mrs. Arvilla Feener and Mrs. Elizabeth Sennett, both of Andover; two grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were held yesterday (Tuesday) from the Meader and Son Funeral Home, Rumford, with the Rev. E. Marquette Churchill officiating; interment in the Woodlawn Cemetery, Andover.

State announces income guidelines for free or reduced-price lunches

Family size and income guidelines for free and reduced-price meals and for free milk in Maine schools for the 1988-89 school year have been announced by the Commissioner of Educational and Cultural Services.

The 1988-89 school year income guidelines are:

• Family size of one, with a monthly income below $626 or yearly income below $7,501, can receive free lunch or free milk; if their income is below $890 monthly or below $10,675 yearly, a student in this family would be eligible for a reduced-price meal;

• Family size of two can receive a free lunch or free milk if their income is less than $838 monthly or less than $10,049 yearly, or a reduced-price meal if their monthly income is less than $1,192 or less than $14,302 yearly;

• Family size of three can receive a free lunch or free milk if their monthly income is below $1,050 or below $12,597 yearly, or a reduced-price meal if their income is below $1,494 monthly or below $17,927 yearly;

• Family size of four can receive a free lunch or free milk if their monthly income is below $1,263 or below $15,145 yearly, or a reduced-price meal if their monthly income is below $1,797 or below $21,553 yearly;

• Family size of five can receive a free lunch or free milk if their monthly income is below $1,475 or their annual income is below $17,693, or a reduced-price meal if their monthly income is below $2,099, or below $25,179 yearly.

Income guidelines for other size families are available from the schools.

Applications for free or reduced-price meals will be sent home with each Maine school child during the first day of school as part of a letter from the school describing the nutrition programs offered by that school.

Information provided on the application is confidential. A family's application must include the names and social security numbers of all adult household members, their total yearly income by source, and be signed by an adult. A family or a child receiving Food Stamps or AFDC assistance needs only to list the child's name, case number and sign the application omitting the income portion of the application. In certain cases, foster children are eligible for free and reduced-price lunches or free milk. For assistance in completing an application for a foster child, the foster parent should contact the school official.

All applications are subject to selection for verification. Applications may be completed and sent to a child's school at any time during the school year. Children of unemployed parents are eligible for free or reduced-price lunches or free milk during the period of unemployment. Recipients of free and reduced-price lunch benefits must notify school officials if their income increases over $50 per month.

Parents filing an application with the school will be notified in writing of the outcome of their application for eligibility. If a family is dissatisfied with the decision of the school official, the parent may make a request, either orally or in writing, to the superintendent of schools or the administrator of the private school.

For further information, contact Kevin Cornforth, director, School Nutrition Program, Station 136, Augusta, 04333; or telephone, 289-5315.

There is a written hearing procedure on file in each school that may be reviewed by any interested party. Federal and state rules prevent discrimination because of a child's race, color, national origin, sex, age or physical or mental handicap. Anyone who believes they have been discriminated against should contact Commissioner Eve M. Bither, or write to the Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D.C., 20250.

For further information, contact Kevin Cornforth, director, School Nutrition Program, Station 136, Augusta, 04333; or telephone, 289-5315.
